

What Campus Crusade for Christ Means to Me

by Michael Weller

When I first came to the University of Nevada, Reno, I was a new founded Christian, and I was looking for a college Christian ministry group that I could join. Being Reno, there were only a couple of solid Christian ministries on campus. Of the few, Campus Crusade for Christ (Cru from now on) was the one that struck me the most. It was definitely a much smaller group than I was used to, but that was also its strength. I was immediately welcomed into the group and felt as though I belonged from the very first day.

Aside from the welcoming atmosphere, it was backed by great theology, one that has its main focus on spreading the Good News of Jesus Christ to all campus's around the world. Truly, when I found out that Cru was one of the biggest campus ministries in the world, I was surprised, but not all together shocked, simply because of the incredible heart that kept the group going.

I have been going to Cru for two and a half years now, and I can't begin to describe you what ways it has helped my walk as a Christian. I entered in being a fledgling Christian, and now I am part of leadership, continuing my discipleship, and also learning how to disciple. Had you told me three years ago that I would be a leader of one of the largest campus ministries in the world, I simply would not have believed you.

The friendships I have made are also beyond what I could have imagined. With the group being so small, you tend to get to know everybody real well, and what is created is an environment that is entirely unique and something you can't find anywhere else.

I wouldn't trade my experience here for anything. God is definitely using me in ways that I never dreamed. I highly recommend that if you are looking for a college ministry, or are looking to get to know God in any way, check out Campus Crusade for Christ, which at UNR, is a little something we like to call "Nevada Cru".
